Description

Tripp Trapp® grows with your child. Designed in 1972 by Peter Opsvik, its launch revolutionised the children's chair category. The chair from Stokke® fits right up to the dining table, bringing children into the heart of the family. The intelligent design provides freedom of movement with both depth and height adjustable seat and footplates, ensuring an ergonomic seating position from birth to adulthood.

Statement of the jury

Many who are grown up today may remember their first high chair, which was often a Tripp Trapp®. Consequently, many parents may still use it for their children. But it may also be because that with its formally clear functional design, the high chair by Peter Opsvik is still impressive even after almost 50 years and fits in effortlessly with modern furnishing. A product that is still completely up-to-date and that future generations of parents will also appreciate.
